The stalwarts are coming to the front in this administration.

It is said that there are 22,000 dead cattle along the shores of the Platte and Arkansas rivers. The remarkably cold winter has been the cause of such fearful fatality.

The Inter Ocean calls all Republicans who are not stalwarts, "half-breeds," and "fair weather R-publians." Those were the ones who generally found favor of the last administration.

Those who have been laboring for the woman's suffrage amendment, now see all their work wasted and their hopes blasted. It will trouble the Legislature no more this session, and like Jim Fisk's stocks, has gone where the woodbine twined.

The death penalty bill which was introduced early in the session, was killed during the session of last Tuesday evening. It died an easy death, there being no one who made much of an effort to secure its passage. The vote by which it killed was 51 to 22.

A Milwaukee dispatch says that Jack Haverly, of Chicago—a man who pulls more theatrical wires than any other man in the United States—has taken $120,000 insurance on his life in the Northwestern Mutual company. Jack purposes to be a rich man after he dies, if not before.

The people of Milwaukee, "without regard to political or social affiliations," we are told, pronounce the anti-treating bill passed by the Legislature, "a crowning piece of idiocy." The people of Milwaukee pride themselves on their white brick and lager beer, and when you attack their beer you hit them in a tender spot. It is said that the Germans in that city are quite indignant over the law, and will charge it against the Republican party.

Mr. Edmunds is the greatest lawyer in the United States Senate, and this partly explains why he sees so many defects in bills, and therefore offers amendments. Once a distinguished Senator from New England became annoyed at one of Edmunds' amendments, and remarked to a brother Senator that he would bet $50, if the truth could be known, that when Edmunds' mother first taught him the Lord's prayer, he bawled upon her knees and offered an amendment to it!

We believe the anti-treating bill is a good one in principle and we are glad to see that kind of a law tried in Wisconsin. Whether it will be practical or whether it will become nothing but a dead letter on the statute books, remains to be seen. The great trouble with such a bill is that there are very few who hang about saloons who would be willing to assume the responsibility of becoming an informant. Here is the trouble, and for this reason there are fears that it will be of little consequence.

"Long Jones," whose regular name is A. M. Jones, has been nominated by President Garfield for United States Marshal at Chicago. It is said that Chicago doesn't like this appointment, because Mr. Jones is not altogether worthy of such a position. He is a warm friend of Senator Logan, and so far as the appointment of Mr. Jones is concerned, General Logan was President. No doubt President Garfield wants to reform the civil service and will make his appointments contribute to that end, but Rip Van Winkle like, this appointment won't count.

The bill to make the commissioners of railways and insurance elective offices, has passed the Legislature. There was a strong opposition to the bill coming from members who thought that if these officers were elected by the people, it would enable the railway companies and insurance corporations to influence the primary assemblies and State conventions, and thus secure the nomination by both parties of men pledged to their interests. On the other hand it was thought the nearer the selection of the State officers was brought to the people, the more satisfactory would be the selection, and the better their administrations. The debate on both sides was quite prolonged, and finally the Senate concurred in the Assembly bill.

President Garfield has a good deal of practical sympathy for the young men of the country, and whenever it lies in his power, he is among the first to help them in a practical way. For some time before the inauguration, there were numerous applicants for the position of private secretary to the President. Among the number who wanted that responsible office were several ex-Congressmen, men of influence, ability, and affluence. But the President was not influenced by any of these considerations, and so he turned to the son of a Washington carpenter, humble in life, but honest, industrious, and in all regards worthy. Mr. Brown who is the favorite young man, began life as President Garfield's clerk, and under discouraging circumstances. He educated himself by hard work and much struggling and bitter disappointments. Some time ago he was made secretary to Major Powell, the government explorer. About three years ago he was recommended to General Garfield, who made him his secretary. He has done all the General's letter writing since that time, and is an excellent stenographer. He was taken in the General's family, and the longer he stood there, the more useful and intelligent, he became, and the more he gained the respect of the General. When he was elected to the Presidency, Garfield, without a word from Mr. Brown, offered him the important and responsible position of private secretary.

THE COUNTY JUDGESHIP.

A call has been made upon Judge Amos P. Prichard, to allow the use of his name in connection with the county judgeship. The call was signed by many influential citizens of both political parties. It expressed a confidence in his integrity and an assurance that they would give him their hearty support. Judge Prichard has consented to be an independent candidate and will have a clear field, no one presuming to run against him.

Judge Prichard has been county judge for more than twenty years. During that time he has filled the office with that carefulness, ability, and wisdom, that won for him the confidence and respect of the people. He has served with such faithfulness and modesty, devoting his entire time to the office, that there was a general desire that there should be no nominating convention, and that his election should be unanimous. Judge Prichard is one of these men in whom the people can have unbounded trust. He is a man of great personal honor, and as a public officer, is far above the least reproach. His faithful service for so many years, and the desire to give him a unanimous election speak louder than words can possibly do in praise of the man.

SUPERINTENDENT WHITFORD'S ANNUAL REPORT.

We have received a copy of the third annual report of Hon. W. C. Whitford, superintendent of public instruction. There are a great many valuable statistics in the report that have been gathered at considerable expense and trouble. There are public schools in every one of the sixty-two organized counties in the State. The superintendent's report gives the following statistics of the school system throughout the State as compared with 1879:

No. of school districts.....	1883.	1879.
Members of district boards.....	5,694	5,367
Public schools.....	167,240	166,807
Ungraded schools.....	5,994	5,362
Graded schools.....	5,335	5,190
High schools.....	451	433
Private schools.....	110	102
Total number of public and private schools.....	6,453	6,430
Teachers required for public schools.....	10,115	9,875
Employed in private schools.....	801	859
In both public and private schools.....	10,916	10,734
Public school houses.....	5,617	5,626
Private capacity of school houses.....	357,113	357,113
Children of school age.....	483,229	483,453
Aged 4 to 7 years.....	112,175	112,175
Aged 7 to 15 years.....	229,520	229,520
Aged 15 to 20 years.....	141,478	141,478
Children attending public schools.....	292,258	292,258
Children attending private schools.....	25,085	25,847

During 1880, there were 433,563 children attending school in Wisconsin, over 323,775 in 1879, an increase of nearly 10,000. Of the aggregate in 1880, there were 299,000 who attended the public schools, the others having attended private schools, denominational schools, and so on.

According to statistics gathered by Superintendent Whitford, the cash value of the public school property in the counties is $3,432,278.24, which is an increase of $67,424.18 over 1879. In the cities of the State, the school property is valued at $1,871,020, which makes the total value of all the school property in the State $5,303,298.24. Of this sum, the valuation of all apparatus used in Wisconsin public schools is $61,523.58; of sites $702,426.04; of school houses, $4,433,734.02. There are in the State, 852 school houses of stone or brick; 197 buildings were erected the past year; a fair proportion of all are classed as well ventilated and in good condition; 18 more buildings are required in the cities. In the matter of text-books, 1,267 districts sell them to the pupils, and 612 loan them.

There is a vast difference in the wages paid teachers in the counties and in the cities. The average monthly wages paid males in the counties is $37.14, and to females $24.91. In the cities, $55.74 to males, and $35.06 to females. The total cost of public education in Wisconsin for the year 1880, was $2,605,625.62, which is an increase of $95,824.49. During the year, special and general taxes and fund incomes brought $2,697,801.55, as the aggregate of receipts for the public schools; the amount disbursed was $2,799,315.84, an increase of $52,426.48 over 1879. Each pupil in school cost $7.24, a decrease of 20 cents over the previous year; in the counties, $6.51, and in the cities, $11.51.

Superintendent Whitford makes a strong argument for the institution of a State tax for school purposes, as opposed to the present school method of raising money. He claims that the efficiency of the schools would be greatly increased under a State tax system, and not leave the matter so greatly to local choice and local enterprise. The two most prominent needs of our public system of education, says the superintendent, are school houses with better and more uniform accommodations, and teachers better qualified, receiving larger wages, and more permanent in their positions. A State tax would, he thinks, undoubtedly aid more than the present method in satisfying these needs, and also tend to discourage the formation of private and sectarian schools in many localities. The superintendent proposes a two mills' tax.

THE NICE EXPLOSION.

Special to the Gazette.

Nice, France, March 24.—A gas retort in the Italian Opera house exploded at the opening of the opera "Lucia de Lam-memoir." The inflammable scenery burned like a flash. The gas all through the immense building was extinguished, but there was a terrible flame on the inside. People crowded through the smoke and darkness for the doors, and strong men tramping weaker men and women to death. Then the whole interior became a sheet of flame. Nearly all the actors and choros people were burned to death. Mlle. Donado, the prima donna, miraculously escaped. The impression is that Strakosch is fatally injured. A squadron of soldiers and police arrived and pulled the mass of people from the doors and corridors. One hundred and fifty bodies have been recovered. Whole families perished in the flames.

ASSEMBLY.

MADISON, March 24.—The Speaker requested all the committees to report all bills to-day.

Bill making railway companies liable for injuries to employees was recommended for indefinite postponement.

Bill was passed requiring railroads to receive certain freights.

The joint resolution making Sheriffs eligible for re-election was killed.

SENATE.

The bill making insanity a ground for divorce was ordered to a third reading. The biennial session resolution was taken up and a long debate followed. The rules were finally suspended and the Assembly resolution passed. The Senate resolution in relation to biennial sessions was referred to McGrew who understood it will be smothered.

The two bills introduced by Senators Sutherland and Richardson relative to the government of the Insane Asylums in this State, were discussed at length, last night, and the matter put over until this afternoon. It is generally understood that Sutherland's bill, which provides for a paid Board which will have exclusive authority over these institutions, will, after some slight amendments, be accepted by the Senate as the best bill of the two.

A SENSATION.

Garfield's Friends Astonished at the Executive Appointments.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—To say that President Garfield's friends were astonished at the nomination of Robertson for collector of customs to-day would be too mild an expression to fully describe the effect of the announcement. The nominations yesterday are of such a character as warranted the conclusion that no encouragement was to be given that class of politicians who claim the right of the minority to dictate terms or bolt. All were men whose Republicanism was of the soundest kind, and it was generally commented upon that the President had taken a lesson from the result of the experiments of the early days of the previous administration, and would make no mistake. Had a bomb-shell burst in the Senate to-day, therefore, it could scarcely have created the consternation and wonder that did the nomination of the sworn enemy of Mosses, Conkling, Platt, and Arthur. There has been a number of minor appointments made in New York of persons who were known to be hostile to Senator Conkling, but owing to the strong desire of the Senator not to be a party to any breach between his friends and the administration, he has not yet yielded to the advice of many of his advisers that he ought, in duty to himself and the party, to object to these appointments.

CHEERS FOR STRONG.

A Remarkable Achievement in Railroad Building.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. March 23.—The first through train from San Francisco over the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe and Southern Pacific railroads reached the Union depot at 5:20 this morning. The train consisted of twelve coaches, being drawn to this city by the engine Self Coolidge, with T. Dickinson holding the throttle. The coaches were all crowded, and seventy-five through passengers were aboard. Something remarkable about the train is the fact that it left San Francisco on time, was on time at every station on the long run of 2,300 miles, and arrived at Kansas City on time, having had a most successful run. For the first train on the new line, with the tracks on part of the road but recently laid, this is one of the most successful runs ever recorded.

ATTEMPTED BANK ROBBERY.

A Bold Attempt at Bank Robbery at Rolla, Missouri.

ROLLA, Mo., March 23.—One of the boldest attempts at bank robbery in the history of Missouri occurred in this city this morning at about 3 o'clock, which resulted in the death of the daring burglar, Pat Ebert. He arrived in Rolla about a month ago from Kansas, ostensibly looking for a location to open a saloon, taking up a lodging in the boarding house near the National Bank of Rolla. His suspicious conduct attracted the attention of the officers of the bank, who called to their aid Hank Devins, the city marshal, who did his duty nobly. Upon investigation it was discovered that the burglar had gained access to a vacant building adjoining the bank, and for three nights had been unobserved in his desperate efforts to tunnel the vault. On the fourth night, just as he made an entrance to the vault, Marshal Devins, and posse, from a signal given by the cashier, who was secreted in the bank, surrounded the building, and attempted his capture alive, but Ebert, who preferred death to arrest, with a dagger in hand, made a desperate effort to escape, and was shot down in his tracks. He lived one hour after being shot, but would reveal nothing. The only words he uttered were "You've got me, boys." The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of justifiable homicide. Marshal Devins is entitled to great credit for the bravery he displayed in entering the dark cellar to make the arrest. Whether Ebert had confederates to assist him in his daring exploit could not be ascertained, but it is the general belief that he had.

WISCONSIN CORPORATION.

MADISON, March 23.—Articles of association have been filed with the Secretary of State for the incorporation of the Great Northern Timber Belt railway company of Wisconsin, with a capital of $2,500,000, for the purpose of building a railway from the shores of Green Bay, through the counties of Brown, Oconto, Shawanaw, Langlade, Marathon, Taylor, Chippewa, Lincoln, Price, Barron, Polk, Burnett, and Douglas, to a point on the St. Croix river. The incorporators are W. C. Silverthorn, R. E. Parcher, H. E. Naher, D. L. Plummer, T. B. McCant, F. A. Healey.

HORRIBLE.

Nice, March 23.—The Italian Opera house burned this evening. The fire broke out at the beginning of the performance.

The bodies of fourteen persons, suffocated, have been taken out and placed in a church opposite the theater.

It is feared a hundred men and women perished in the flames.

BEECHER'S RESIDENCE.

NEW YORK, March 23.—Mr. Beecher has sold his house on Columbia Heights, Brooklyn. Mr. Beecher has lived in the house many years. The house was mortgaged some years ago for $10,000, and subsequently for $5,000, the latter being raised for the benefit of Theodore Tilton, when the scandal, which afterward came to light, was being smothered. It is understood that Mr. Beecher expects to remove to his home in Peekskill, but he probably will continue to have a winter residence in Brooklyn.

JOHN LEWIS.

WATERTOWN, March 23.—John Lewis, one of the smallest men in America, of whom there is any record, died yesterday at the home of his parents in Ixonia, Jefferson county, aged 21 years. Lewis was only twenty-seven inches in height, and his average weight of late years was only nineteen pounds. With the exception of a slight deformity in his hands and feet, he was perfect in form and symmetry. He was a great curiosity, and had many offers to exhibit himself, all of which he refused.

How Book Agents are Trained.

PRINCE—"What is the book for which you canvass?"

Pupil—"The History of the Bible?"

PRINCE—"What does it cost?"

Pupil—"Seven dollars and—"

PRINCE—"Now?"

Pupil—"Two cents a day."

PRINCE—"Yes. How many numbers?"

Pupil—"Twenty-nine. Delivered every two weeks."

PRINCE—"How many numbers are ready for delivery, and when do you mention the fact?"

Pupil—"Four. After the subscription is taken."

PRINCE—"Good! Now, how will you carry your prospectus?"

Pupil—"I'll wrap it up in paper and keep it nice and clean."

PRINCE—"Now! Clean! They ain't old enough looking. You start out, you see, my friend, with a good subscription list already taken. You show it—you needn't say they were taken in Cincinnati—we are ladies and gentlemen—we never lie. Now! You don't carry it rolled up in a paper or in a sack. You don't carry it in your hand or under your arm—you carry it here."

The Prince slipped it dexterously beneath the breast of his coat, snugly buttoned it in. "Now! we are gentlemen and ladies on the street. I don't have any one else work for me; and you, miss, will put yours under your cloak. I had one lady who used to slip hers right under her bustle. Now you are going to call. How do you know Mrs. Rose is the lady of the house?"

Pupil—"Oh! I could find that out in the last house."

PRINCE—"Of course you could, and how many children she has, and what her husband does for a living, and you may get an inkling of what church she belongs to; but cautious, you know, cautious. When you ring the bell and the servant comes to the door what would you say?"

First Pupil—"I would ask is the lady of the house in?"

PRINCE—"Now. What would you say?"

Second Pupil—"Is Mrs. Rose in?"

PRINCE—"Now! She would tell you that Mrs. Rose is not in, and Mrs. Rose would hear her say so. They teach their servants to lie. Ladies and gentlemen, they all do it. What would you say, Miss?"

Third Pupil—"Be kind enough to tell Mrs. Rose that a lady wishes to see her."

PRINCE—"Now! That would be true but not polite. The servant would tell you to call again when Mrs. Rose was in. You never would find Mrs. Rose. You would, sir, step into the hall, place your hat on the rack, say very coolly to the servant, 'Tell Mrs. Rose Mr. N. J. Hall wishes to speak with her'; then walk into the parlor and take a seat. The servant will be sure you are a gentleman and an old acquaintance. She will say, 'Yes, sir, with a simper and a smile, and trot off up stairs without a word. Then if you listen you will hear them above:

"Why, who in the world is N. J. Hall? I'm sure I don't remember him. Has he got anything with him?"

"Now, if you had your book in your hand, eh?"

"No, mum; he hasn't got any thing."

"She doesn't come and say, 'Mrs. Rose is indisposed to-day, sir, or, 'Mrs. Rose is engaged.' A lie, you know, but it settles your hash. Now! She doesn't, but if she is very suspicious the servant will come down and ask the nature of your business upon which you wish to see Mrs. Rose. Now, what would you tell her?"

Pupil—"I would tell her—tell her—I don't know what I should tell her, but I shouldn't tell my business."

Second Pupil—"I should tell her that I would rather not mention my business to any one except Mrs. Rose."

PRINCE—"And she would send the servant down once more to tell you to call again. Now! You would tell her that you had called upon a matter concerning the welfare of her children. Don't you see, they are at school; she doesn't know but that something very serious has happened or is about to happen—that will bring her every time. She'll come down stairs, she'll happen to be a little nervous, with her heart in her mouth. She'll run to meet you. Now, what would you say when she comes?"

Pupil—"Why, I should take out my prospectus and begin talking the book."

PRINCE—"Now! You wouldn't frighten her away; you wouldn't shove the book under her nose the first thing. You are a gentleman; she is a lady. You would bow politely. 'Mrs. Rose, I presume. 'Yes, sir, I am Mrs. Rose.'"

"I have called on behalf of the children (mark you, the children, not your children). The country, madam, is flooded with dime novel sensational stories, an unlimited amount of trash—"

"Yes, sir; but my children are not permitted to read such things."

"Very true, madam. Pardon me, I can readily see that you are a lady of too excellent judgment to permit it, if you know it; but the temptation is before them always. This literature perverts their emotions, ruins their morality, and sows the seed of religious skepticism, etc. Then you can take out your book and show the beautiful pictures. 'Only two cents a day, madam; think of that. Purely nonsectarian, a grand effort to interest the children in the Bible, etc., etc.' If there happens to be a young child in the room you can turn to this magnificent picture by Gustave Dore of Moses in the bulrushes, and remark on the resemblance of the child to the youthful Moses, and then go on talking the pictures and the stories. Never ask her to subscribe; she'll do it when you've talked long enough."—Cincinnati Gazette.

The experiments begun ten or twelve years ago for naturalizing in certain parts of India the best varieties of the cinchona or Peruvian bark tree have been attended with the most remarkable success, and there are now in various stages of growth probably millions of cinchona plants already yielding the Peruvian bark so plentifully and so perfectly that the price of quinine has fallen considerably in Ceylon and other parts. There is every probability that in six or seven years the Indian production of quinine will be so large and the price so low that it will become a considerable article of export.

BUT, soft! what light through yonder window breaks? It is a snowball; and yonder goes the son of a glazier.—Brooklyn Union-Army.

"IS LIFE worth living?" is always answered in the affirmative by the man who holds a free ticket to the theater.—Indianapolis Herald.

JANUARY is an "off" month—that is, a swearing "off" month. But the month is generally longer than the swear off.—Norristown Herald.

A PHILADELPHIA girl, who is an expert at handkerchief flitting, thinks she ought to be appointed Chief of the Signal Service.—N. Y. Express.

A GERMAN emigrant girl, weighing over two hundred, has been abducted in New York. A sort of high-weight robbery, you know.—Salem Sunbeam.

"WHAT," asked the teacher, "was the greatest obstacle Washington encountered in crossing the Delaware?" And the smart boy thought for a minute and then made answer. "The toll man."—Burlington Hawkeye.

THE train had just rolled into the station, and little Charley stood listening a moment to the sound of the Westinghouse escape. Then, to the surprise of his father, he said, "Pa, the engine's all out of breath, ain't it?"—Boston Transcript.

A PRUDENT and far-seeing mother married her two daughters some years ago to a plumber and an ice man, and now, no matter whether there is a mild winter or a severe one, she has a box at the Charity Ball, and spends the next summer at Newport, or goes to Europe, with one or other of her sons-in-law.—Chic.

King Kalakaua Interviewed.

A RECENT San Francisco dispatch says: King Kalakaua, of the Hawaiian Islands, who arrived by steamer on Saturday night, is spending several days in this city, preparatory to taking a tour around the world. He sails for China on February 8, and proposes to visit Japan, China, Bombay, Rome, Paris and London. On his return he will spend several weeks at the East. He has a great desire to see Saratoga and Newport in the height of the fashionable season. He also wants to inspect the municipal works in large Eastern cities. The King travels incognito, attended only by three of his officers. He dresses simply in a black suit, wears no jewelry, and no decorations. He is a super-looking man, over six feet in height, and carries himself with the upright bearing of a soldier. He looks like an Italian, with rather heavy features, has a black beard and mustache, and a very amiable expression. He speaks excellent English and is very cordial in his manners. He talked with nearly every one on board the steamer, and his free and easy manners were a source of great amazement to Proctor, the English astronomer, who was returning from a lecturing tour in Australia. Proctor thought Kalakaua was a small specimen of a King because he got a little full of whisky one day and insisted on singing Hawaiian National airs for the edification of the crowd on the forward deck. The King, in a talk with a reporter, says the voyage was not unpremeditated, but he grew tired of the tedious of island life, wanted to see the world and to find some means of increasing the labor supply of the islands without importing Chinese coolies. He wishes to get facilities to emigrate there, as makes already outnumber females on the islands, and the Chinese who come over are all men. He also declared he wished to recuperate his health, but judging from the grip he gives one's hand in shaking it, and from his robust appetite, he would be called in splendid physical condition.

—The Sheriff has been expecting several days the arrival of Alexander Young from Beloit, who has been held for trial for assisting a Janesville young man, named Powers, to escape from the lock-up there. Officer Robinson expected to bring Young here last Saturday but the storm interfered, and he kept his prisoner lodged in the lock-up. When he went to feed him Monday morning, he found that Alex had skipped, and now the officers are on the hunt for him again.

—This afternoon the funeral services of the late Mrs. Ellen Hale were held at the Congregational church, a brief service at the house preceding the more public one. Rev. Mr. Sawin officiated, and many of the friends of the deceased joined in paying meite tribute to her memory. Her death has saddened a large circle of friends, and as many as could, showed their respect and sympathy by attending the service, and on all sides are heard expressions of sorrow that one so worthy of living should be thus suddenly taken hence.

—The case of Murphy vs. Ray, which involved the title to a share of stock in the cotton factory was decided this morning by the Supreme Court in favor of Murphy, reversing the decision of the Circuit Court. The share of stock in dispute was one which was owned by Father Doyle and sold to Mr. Eldred, and Murphy as one of the former's creditors attached it. The decision of the Supreme Court in reversing that of the Circuit Court, is in effect that an unrecorded transfer of the capital stock is invalid as against an attaching creditor. Attorneys Brooks and Hendrix have been acting in the matter in the interest of Murphy, and Attorney Rager for Mr. Ray, secretary of the cotton factory.

—Mr. J. B. DeLong, and Mr. Grote, of Pittsburgh, were out, last Saturday, buying tobacco, and of course, were snowed in, or rather, snowed out. They found that they could not travel by team, so they traveled Monday and Tuesday on foot, buying tobacco wherever they could. By pulling bags over their heads they kept the snow off, and floundered along in drifts from knee-deep to waist-deep, and in this way went between thirty-five and forty miles. Among those from whom they bought tobacco were John Cunningham, B. T. Pembur, David Carter, James Barragan, Patrick Garey, H. Gendrick, Charles North, Fred North, Wm. Gulvin, A. Huker, H. Griswold, F. C. Parker, besides small lots of other parties. The price for the best was about twelve cents. It was wild travelling, but showed that business can be done under adverse circumstances, if there's the will and the pluck.

—To-morrow evening the Bower City Rifles are to give another dance at their armory. Only half a dollar, and lots of fun. Anderson's band.

—It looks as if every thing was being got ready for another big storm Saturday. That day of the week might as well be cut out of the calendar altogether.

—Joe Creighton, the dry goods man of Whitewater, broke through the snow, drifts to Janesville, and had a little "fun with the boys" last evening. He reports business good.

—Some of the railroad shovellers the other day, at Beloit, struck for $2.00, an advance of fifty cents. They struck out, and after a little went back to work at the old wages.

—W. W. Bentley, of New York, an evangelist, is stopping at the Pembur house, waiting for a chance to get to Clinton, where he expects to hold a series of meetings.

—The train from the north this afternoon arrived about on time, and the Chicago mail came up by Afton. The Northwestern expects by to-morrow to be running all trains as usual.

—The funeral services of the late Miss Nettie Gibbs, were held this morning at the Baptist church, of which she had for several years been a member. In the absence of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Sawin officiated.

—K. W. Bemis will this season give his time and attention to the farm machinery department of Hanchett & Sheldon's business. He has experience and enterprise, and the firm have done well in securing him.

—One of the snow shovellers was taken down to jail to-day being completely snow blind, and needing treatment. Another one was also taken down because he was blind drunk, and had had too much treatment.

—J. M. Cobb, of Beloit, has purchased what is known as the Rood farm, some 200 acres, including the Beloit fair grounds, the price paid being $3,000. He proposes to give the fair association a chance buy to it, if it so desires.

—Rev. C. C. Marston, of Clinton, is editing a little paper called "The Baptist Visitor," which he is having published at the Herald office there. As its name implies, it is a church paper, representing the interests of the denomination to which he belongs.

—Charlotte Thompson and company arrived this afternoon and will appear at the Opera house this evening in "The Planter's Wife." It will prove a first-class entertainment without doubt, and the reputation of the star should draw a full house.

—A. E. Morse having given up his abstract business here, leaves for Topeka, Kansas, where he expects to enter the employ of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad, as a clerk in the land department. The abstract office is to be removed to the Court house, and C. L. Valentine will manage it.

—Edwin Clifford, Alex Beers and Lester Burton, of the Clifford dramatic company, paid their respects to the Gazette office to-day. The company have been snow bound at Beloit since Saturday, playing there with good success for three nights. Portage is the next point which the company will try to reach.

—A young man from Porter, named Ted McCarthy, while trying to jump onto a moving train this afternoon, slipped and fell, breaking one of his legs. He was taken to Dr. Palmer's office to be operated upon. Upon examination it was found necessary to amputate the leg, the operation being performed at once.

—The Sheriff has been expecting several days the arrival of Alexander Young from Beloit, who has been held for trial for assisting a Janesville young man, named Powers, to escape from the lock-up there. Officer Robinson expected to bring Young here last Saturday but the storm interfered, and he kept his prisoner lodged in the lock-up. Mr. Sawin officiated, and many of the friends of the deceased joined in paying meite tribute to her memory. Her death has saddened a large circle of friends, and as many as could, showed their respect and sympathy by attending the service, and on all sides are heard expressions of sorrow that one so worthy of living should be thus suddenly taken hence.

—The case of Murphy vs. Ray, which involved the title to a share of stock in the cotton factory was decided this morning by the Supreme Court in favor of Murphy, reversing the decision of the Circuit Court. The share of stock in dispute was one which was owned by Father Doyle and sold to Mr. Eldred, and Murphy as one of the former's creditors attached it. The decision of the Supreme Court in reversing that of the Circuit Court, is in effect that an unrecorded transfer of the capital stock is invalid as against an attaching creditor. Attorneys Brooks and Hendrix have been acting in the matter in the interest of Murphy, and Attorney Rager for Mr. Ray, secretary of the cotton factory.

—Mr. J. B. DeLong, and Mr. Grote, of Pittsburgh, were out, last Saturday, buying tobacco, and of course, were snowed in, or rather, snowed out. They found that they could not travel by team, so they traveled Monday and Tuesday on foot, buying tobacco wherever they could. By pulling bags over their heads they kept the snow off, and floundered along in drifts from knee-deep to waist-deep, and in this way went between thirty-five and forty miles. Among those from whom they bought tobacco were John Cunningham, B. T. Pembur, David Carter, James Barragan, Patrick Garey, H. Gendrick, Charles North, Fred North, Wm. Gulvin, A. Huker, H. Griswold, F. C. Parker, besides small lots of other parties. The price for the best was about twelve cents. It was wild travelling, but showed that business can be done under adverse circumstances, if there's the will and the pluck.

—To-morrow evening the Bower City Rifles are to give another dance at their armory. Only half a dollar, and lots of fun. Anderson's band.

—It looks as if every thing was being got ready for another big storm Saturday. That day of the week might as well be cut out of the calendar altogether.

—Joe Creighton, the dry goods man of Whitewater, broke through the snow, drifts to Janesville, and had a little "fun with the boys" last evening. He reports business good.

—W. W. Bentley, of New York, an evangelist, is stopping at the Pembur house, waiting for a chance to get to Clinton, where he expects to hold a series of meetings.

—The train from the north this afternoon arrived about on time, and the Chicago mail came up by Afton. The Northwestern expects by to-morrow to be running all trains as usual.

—The funeral services of the late Miss Nettie Gibbs, were held this morning at the Baptist church, of which she had for several years been a member. In the absence of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Sawin officiated.

—K. W. Bemis will this season give his time and attention to the farm machinery department of Hanchett & Sheldon's business. He has experience and enterprise, and the firm have done well in securing him.

—One of the snow shovellers was taken down to jail to-day being completely snow blind, and needing treatment. Another one was also taken down because he was blind drunk, and had had too much treatment.

—J. M. Cobb, of Beloit, has purchased what is known as the Rood farm, some 200 acres, including the Beloit fair grounds, the price paid being $3,000. He proposes to give the fair association a chance buy to it,
